In the picture you can see a lot of students wearing lab coats. They gathered around a device, which is some kind of microscope. It consists of tubes and lenses. I think these people are medical students who are attending a medical university course. The man in the middle is the instructor. The students in the picture are interested in what they are learning. I think classes which give an opportunity to explore scientific things are really interesting. Computers and other advanced technology can also be helpful in class. Students can learn a lot with the help of modern technology.
